9 CRYSTAL JOHNSON,

10 Plaintiff,

11 v.

12 NANCY A. BERRYHILL, Deputy Commissioner of Social Security for Operations,

13 Defendant.
14

NO. C17-5818-JPD

ORDER

15 Plaintiff Crystal Johnson appeals the final decision of the Commissioner of the Social 16 Security Administration (“Commissioner”) that denied her application for Supplemental 17 Security Income (“SSI”) under Title XVI of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 1381-83f,
18 after a hearing before an administrative law judge (“ALJ”). For the reasons set forth below,
19 the Court REVERSES the Commissioner’s decision and REMANDS this matter for further 20 administrative proceedings.

21 I. FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

22 Plaintiff is a 36-year-old woman with an associate’s degree. Administrative Record
23 (“AR”) at 40-41. Her past work experience includes employment as a temporary assembler
24 worker, cashier, front desk clerk, and retail supervisor. AR at 213. Plaintiff was last gainfully

1 employed in July 2013. Id.

2 In November 2014, Plaintiff protectively filed a claim for SSI payments, alleging an 3 onset date of February 28, 2013. AR at 65-66, 175-180. Plaintiff asserts that she is disabled
4 due to back problems, bipolar disorder, depression, anxiety disorder, sleep apnea, anemia,
5 endometriosis, and post-traumatic stress disorder. AR at 202.

6 The Commissioner denied Plaintiff's claim initially and on reconsideration. AR at 83-
7 91, 95-101. Plaintiff requested a hearing, which took place on June 22, 2016. AR at 37-51.
8 On July 1, 2016, the ALJ issued a decision finding Plaintiff not disabled and denied benefits
9 based on his finding that Plaintiff could perform a specific job existing in significant numbers
10 in the national economy. AR at 20-30. Plaintiff's administrative appeal of the ALJ's decision 11 was denied by the Appeals Council, AR at 1-6, making the ALJ's ruling the "final decision" of 12 the Commissioner as that term is defined by 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). On October 12, 2017, 13 Plaintiff timely filed the present action challenging the Commissioner's decision. Dkt. 1.

14 II. JURISDICTION

15 Jurisdiction to review the Commissioner's decision exists pursuant to 42 U.S.C. §§ 16 405(g) and 1383(c)(3).

17 III. STANDARD OF REVIEW

18 Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 405(g), this Court may set aside the Commissioner's denial of 19 social security benefits when the ALJ's findings are based on legal error or not supported by 20 substantial evidence in the record as a whole. Bayliss v. Barnhart, 427 F.3d 1211, 1214 (9th 21 Cir. 2005). "Substantial evidence" is more than a scintilla, less than a preponderance, and is 22 such relevant evidence as a reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion.
23 Richardson v. Perales, 402 U.S. 389, 401 (1971); Magallanes v. Bowen, 881 F.2d 747, 750
24 (9th Cir. 1989). The ALJ is responsible for determining credibility, resolving conflicts in

1 medical testimony, and resolving any other ambiguities that might exist. Andrews v. Shalala,
2 53 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 1995). While the Court is required to examine the record as a 3 whole, it may neither reweigh the evidence nor substitute its judgment for that of the 4 Commissioner. Thomas v. Barnhart, 278 F.3d 947, 954 (9th Cir. 2002). When the evidence is 5 susceptible to more than one rational interpretation, it is the Commissioner’s conclusion that 6 must be upheld. Id.

7 IV. EVALUATING DISABILITY

8 As the claimant, Ms. Johnson bears the burden of proving that she is disabled within 9 the meaning of the Social Security Act (the “Act”). Meanel v. Apfel, 172 F.3d 1111, 1113 (9th 10 Cir. 1999) (internal citations omitted). The Act defines disability as the “inability to engage in 11 any substantial gainful activity” due to a physical or mental impairment which has lasted, or is 12 expected to last, for a continuous period of not less than twelve months. 42 U.S.C. §§
13 423(d)(1)(A), 1382c(a)(3)(A). A claimant is disabled under the Act only if her impairments
14 are of such severity that she is unable to do her previous work, and cannot, considering her age, 15 education, and work experience, engage in any other substantial gainful activity existing in the 16 national economy. 42 U.S.C. §§ 423(d)(2)(A); see also Tackett v. Apfel, 180 F.3d 1094, 1098-
17 99 (9th Cir. 1999).

18 The Commissioner has established a five step sequential evaluation process for 19 determining whether a claimant is disabled within the meaning of the Act. See 20 C.F.R. §§ 20 404.1520, 416.920. The claimant bears the burden of proof during steps one through four. At 21 step five, the burden shifts to the Commissioner. Id. If a claimant is found to be disabled at 22 any step in the sequence, the inquiry ends without the need to consider subsequent steps. Step 23 one asks whether the claimant is presently engaged in “substantial gainful activity.” 20 C.F.R.

1 §§ 404.1520(b), 416.920(b).¹ If she is, disability benefits are denied. If she is not, the 2 Commissioner proceeds to step two. At step two, the claimant must establish that she has one
3 or more medically severe impairments, or combination of impairments, that limit her physical 4 or mental ability to do basic work activities. If the claimant does not have such impairments,
5 she is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(c), 416.920(c). If the claimant does have a severe
6 impairment, the Commissioner moves to step three to determine whether the impairment meets
7 or equals any of the listed impairments described in the regulations. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(d),
8 416.920(d). A claimant whose impairment meets or equals one of the listings for the required
9 twelve-month duration requirement is disabled. Id.

10 When the claimant's impairment neither meets nor equals one of the impairments listed
11 in the regulations, the Commissioner must proceed to step four and evaluate the claimant's 12 residual functional capacity ("RFC"). 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(e), 416.920(e). Here, the 13 Commissioner evaluates the physical and mental demands of the claimant's past relevant work 14 to determine whether she can still perform that work. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(f), 416.920(f). If 15 the claimant is able to perform her past relevant work, she is not disabled; if the opposite is 16 true, then the burden shifts to the Commissioner at step five to show that the claimant can 17 perform other work that exists in significant numbers in the national economy, taking into 18 consideration the claimant's RFC, age, education, and work experience. 20 C.F.R. §§ 19 404.1520(g), 416.920(g); Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1099, 1100. If the Commissioner finds the 20 claimant is unable to perform other work, then the claimant is found disabled and benefits may 21 be awarded.

23 ¹ Substantial gainful activity is work activity that is both substantial, i.e., involves 24 significant physical and/or mental activities, and gainful, i.e., performed for profit. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1572.

V. DECISION BELOW

On July 1, 2016, the ALJ issued a decision finding the following:

1. The claimant has not engaged in substantial gainful activity since November 6, 2014, the application date.
2. The claimant has the following severe impairments: depressive disorder, personality disorder, and somatoform disorder.
3. The claimant does not have an impairment or combination of impairments that meets or medically equals the severity of one of the listed impairments in 20 CFR Part 404, Subpart P, Appendix 1.
4. After careful consideration of the entire record, the undersigned finds that the claimant has the residual functional capacity to perform a full range of work at all exertional levels. She is limited to simple, routine, repetitive tasks. She can have occasional, superficial public contact. She can have occasional, superficial coworker contact.
5. The claimant is unable to perform any past relevant work.
6. The claimant was born on XXXXX, 1981 and was 33 years old, which is defined as a younger individual age 18-49, on the date the application was filed.²
7. The claimant has at least a high school education and is able to communicate in English.
8. Transferability of job skills is not material to the determination of disability because using the Medical-Vocational Rules as a framework supports a finding that the claimant is “not disabled,” whether or not the claimant has transferable job skills.
9. Considering the claimant’s age, education, work experience, and residual functional capacity, there are jobs that exist in significant numbers in the national economy that the claimant can perform.
10. The claimant has not been under a disability, as defined in the Social Security Act, since November 6, 2014, the date the application was filed.

AR at 22-30.

² The actual date is deleted in accordance with Local Rule CR 5.2, W.D. Washington.

1 VI. ISSUE ON APPEAL

2 The issue on appeal is whether the ALJ erred in assessing certain medical opinions.
3 Dkt. 8 at 1.

4 VII. DISCUSSION

5 A. The ALJ erred in assessing the State agency opinions.

6 Plaintiff argues that the ALJ erred in discounting the State agency opinions, written by 7 non-examining psychologists. See AR at 52-64, 67-80.

8 Opinions from non-examining medical sources are to be given less weight than treating 9 or examining doctors. Lester v. Chater, 81 F.3d 821, 831 (9th Cir. 1996). However, an ALJ
10 must always evaluate the opinions from such sources and may not simply ignore them. In 11 other words, an ALJ must evaluate the opinion of a non-examining source and explain the 12 weight given to it. Social Security Ruling (“SSR”) 96-6p, 1996 WL 374180, at *2. Although 13 an ALJ generally gives more weight to an examining doctor’s opinion than to a non-examining 14 doctor’s opinion, a non-examining doctor’s opinion may nonetheless constitute substantial 15 evidence if it is consistent with other independent evidence in the record. Thomas, 278 F.3d at 16 957; Orn v. Astrue, 495 F.3d 625, 632-33 (9th Cir. 2007).

17 The ALJ summarized the State agency opinions and gave them some weight, as 18 follows:

19 On April 6, 2015, State agency psychological consultant, Edward Beaty, PhD, 20 opined the claimant was capable of moderate, routine, repetitive tasks with 21 episodic interruptions ([AR at 52-64]). The doctor opined she was capable of 22 superficial interactions with others. The doctor opined she was able to adapt to 23 minor changes in the workplace and could carry out simple goals and plans as 24 directed by supervisors. On July 3, 2015, State agency psychological consultant John Robinson, PhD, concurred with Dr. Beaty’s opinion ([AR at 67-80]). The opinion is given some weight inasmuch as it is consistent with the above [RFC].
The doctors had the benefit of reviewing medical evidence. However, the balance of the medical evidence supports the limitations set forth in the above [RFC]. Specifically, an examining clinician found the claimant had moderately

1 impaired concentration and memory ([AR at 2903-38]). The supports [sic] the 2 claimant is limited to simple, routine, repetitive tasks.

3 AR at 27-28.

4 Plaintiff first argues that the ALJ erred in discounting the opinions because they were 5 inconsistent with his own RFC assessment, rather than crafting an RFC assessment based on 6 the record. Dkt. 8 at 3-4 (citing Trevizo v. Berryhill, 871 F.3d 664, 678 n.6 (9th Cir. 2017);
7 Laborin v. Berryhill, 867 F.3d 1151, 1154 (9th Cir. 2017)). But that is not what the ALJ did 8 here: the ALJ indicated that the State agency opinions were credited to some extent, but 9 discounted to the extent that they were inconsistent with treatment notes. AR at 27-28. The 10 ALJ did not reason back from the RFC assessment.

11 The ALJ did, however, fail to explain which parts of the State agency opinions were 12 credited and which parts were rejected, as the Commissioner concedes. Dkt. 12 at 2. The 13 Commissioner contends that this error is harmless, because the ALJ's RFC assessment fully 14 accounts for the State agency opinions. Dkt. 12 at 13. The Commissioner is incorrect. The 15 ALJ's RFC assessment makes no mention of the adaptation limitations described by the State
16 agency consultants (AR at 62, 77), nor does it address the impact of the "episodic 17 interruption[s] due to psych" that the State agency consultants mentioned (AR at 61, 77). The 18 ALJ did not reference these limitations in the hypothetical posed to the vocational expert 19 ("VE"). AR at 46-50. Because neither the RFC assessment nor the VE hypothetical fully 20 account for the State agency opinions, the Court cannot find that the ALJ's error in failing to 21 specify which portions of the State agency opinions were credited and which were discounted 22 is harmless. On remand, the ALJ must reconsider the State agency psychological opinions and 23 either credit them, or provide legally sufficient reasons to discount them.

1 B. The ALJ erred in assessing the opinion of examining psychologist Brett Valette, Ph.D.

2 Dr. Valette examined Plaintiff in March 2015 and expressed concern about
3 somatization and symptom exaggeration. AR at 918-22. The ALJ summarized Dr. Valette's
4 opinion and explained that he gave great weight to it:

5 On March 23, 2015, consultative psychological examiner Dr. Valette opined the 6 claimant could understand, remember and carry out an extensive variety of 7 complex instructions, but could not maintain concentration and attention to 8 carry out these instructions ([AR at 918-22]). The doctor opined she could 9 understand, remember and carry out detailed instructions, and understand,
10 remember and carry out simple, one or two step instructions. The doctor opined 11 she could maintain concentration and attention to carry out these instructions.
12 The doctor opined she appeared to have difficulty interacting with authority figures but could interact appropriate[ly] with coworkers and the public. The opinion is given great weight because the doctor examined the claimant and it is consistent with the doctor's clinical findings. Specifically, the claimant reported medications helped her mood and anxiety. On mental status testing, she was able to recall three out of three items immediately and two out of three after five minutes, complete serial three subtractions from 20, and spell "world" backwards and forwards.

13 AR at 27. Despite the great weight the ALJ afforded to Dr. Valette's opinion, the RFC
14 assessment makes no mention of the "difficulty interacting with authority figures" that Dr.
15 Valette addressed in his opinion. Compare AR at 24 with AR at 921. The ALJ's RFC
16 assessment limits Plaintiff's interaction with coworkers and the public, but not supervisors.
17 AR at 24.

18 The Commissioner argues that the ALJ was not required to address Dr. Valette's 19 opinion regarding Plaintiff's difficulty interacting with authority figures because this "was a 20 relatively vague comment, and it did not describe a specific limitation on Plaintiff's ability to 21 work." Dkt. 12 at 4. The Commissioner argues that the ALJ properly focused on more 22 specific limitations found in the State agency opinions. Id.

23 This argument is not persuasive. The ALJ explicitly mentioned Dr. Valette's opinion 24 regarding Plaintiff's ability to interact with supervisors, and did not describe it as vague or

1 provide any indication that he declined to fully credit Dr. Valette's opinion. Furthermore, the 2 State agency opinions did not describe any supervisor limitations (AR at 61, 77), and thus it is 3 unclear how the ALJ could have accounted for Dr. Valette's opinion by focusing on the State
4 agency opinions. See Dkt. 12 at 4. Furthermore, the State agency consultants did not credit
5 Dr. Valette's opinion, finding that it was based on only a "snap shot view" of Plaintiff (AR at 6 76), and thus the State agency opinions do not represent a translation of Dr. Valette's opinion
7 into concrete limitations, as in Stubbs-Danielson v. Astrue, 539 F.3d 1169 (9th Cir. 2008).

8 Although the Commissioner seeks to analogize this case to Meanel v. Apfel, this case is 9 distinguishable. Dkt. 12 at 4 (citing 172 F.2d 1111 (9th Cir. 1999)). In Meanel, the Ninth 10 Circuit found that an ALJ's RFC assessment was consistent with a treating doctor's opinion,
11 and therefore the ALJ did not err in failing to provide reasons to discount it. 172 F.3d at 1113-
12 14. Here, the ALJ's RFC assessment does not address Plaintiff's ability to interact with 13 supervisors, even though Dr. Valette stated that Plaintiff had limitations in that area and the 14 ALJ credited his opinion. Thus, unlike in Meanel, the ALJ's RFC assessment does not fully 15 account for a credited opinion, and the ALJ's decision is therefore erroneous. See SSR 96-8p, 16 1996 WL 374184, at *7 (Jul. 2, 1996) ("If the RFC assessment conflicts with an opinion from a 17 medical source, the adjudicator must explain why the opinion was not adopted."). On remand, 18 the ALJ must reconsider Dr. Valette's opinion and either credit it and account for all of the 19 limitations therein in the RFC assessment, or provide legally sufficient reasons to discount it.

VIII. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court recommends that this case be REVERSED and REMANDED to the Commissioner for further proceedings not inconsistent with the Court's instructions.

United States Magistrate Judge
